

New Anti-Jewish Bill Introduced; Deputies Aroused

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

BUDAPEST—Introduction of the new anti-Jewish bill in Parliament last week was marked by stormy scenes in the Lower House. Angry shouts of "barbarism!", "this is the German spirit!", "long live equality!" came from the Social Democratic and Liberal deputies when the bill was presented by Justice Minister Andreas Tasnadi-Nagy. Government supporters countered with loud applause for the bill. After a brief session the House adjourned until Jan. 1, without having taken action.

The Government published the text of the new "Jew Law," containing drastic restrictions on the Jews' right to earn a living, vote, hold public office and participate in the nation's cultural life.

The far-reaching bill would limit

MANY SEEK CONVERSION

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

BUDAPEST—The new restrictions have spurred a rush of Jews to seek protection by conversion to the Christian religion. Justinian George Cardinal Seredi, Catholic Primate of Hungary, has sent out a pastoral letter, advising that all Jews who seek conversion must study the catechism two hours daily for at least three months. The Calvinist Church has stipulated a year's wait before conversion.

It Jews to six per cent in professions and cultural pursuits, bar them altogether from responsible positions in the press, theater and cinema, ban them from all civil service posts and limit them to twelve per cent in private enterprises. The present law limits Jews to 20 per cent in most economic and cultural fields.

Foreshadowing a campaign of denationalization and enforced emigration, the bill would empower the Minister of Interior to deprive of Hungarian citizenship all persons nationalized after July 1, 1914, and would authorize the Government to regulate the question of Jewish emigration and the transfer of Jewish capital from the country.

A "Jew" is defined as a person with one or two Jewish parents but excluded from the definition are quarter-Jews as well as half Jews who were converted to Christianity before Jan. 1, 1938, and also war veterans decorated for exceptional bravery and invalids at least 50 per cent incapacitated. Less inclusive than Germany's Nuremberg Laws in the definition of Jew, the bill has already drawn the fire of Hungarian Nazis.

Publication of the bill climaxed reports that the Government was preparing to "settle the Jewish problem once and for all." Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano of Italy, who visited here last week, was believed to have aided in its drafting. The rising anti-Semitism in the Government only last week provoked an outburst in the Upper Chamber when Louis Szilage accused Premier Bela Imredy of "creating an atmosphere in which Christians are no longer judged by their honesty or their honor, or their capacities, but solely by the degree of their anti-Semitism."

May Withdraw Bremen

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON.—The News Chronicle reported this week that the American boycott has hit the North German Lloyd line so hard that it will soon withdraw the Bremen from the transatlantic service. The paper said the liner carried only 26 passengers on its last trip. "Such is the efficiency of the boycott decreed by the Americans after the pogroms," it added.

U. S. Newspapers Uphold Welles In Nazi Stand

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—Newspapers of all shades of opinion voiced strong approval of the United States Government's action in sharply rejecting a formal German protest at a speech by Interior Secretary Harold Ickes in which he denounced Nazi leaders and their "bestial" persecution of Jews.

Declaring Acting Secretary of State Welles "took the proper course and the only course available" in rejecting the Nazi demand for an apology, the N. Y. Times said in its leading editorial: "As matters stand, we are necessarily concerned primarily with our own affairs and our own problems. But this primary concern has never in the past prevented us, and is never likely to prevent us, from speaking our minds when any government anywhere in the world commits acts of barbarism and brutality."

The N. Y. Herald Tribune, in an editorial captioned: "About Time," said "we cannot resist a feeling of profound satisfaction in the fact that we belong to perhaps the one nation in the world which is still able to make precisely the kind of reply to the Nazis that Mr. Welles made to their government's official protest of Mr. Ickes' Cleveland speech."

convents is expected by the end of January.

Comparatively few priests will be able to leave, however, the paper states, since permission will be granted only to those monks, priests and lay brothers over fifty-eight years of age. Further restrictions will deny permission to those under sixty-five who were officers in the war and to those under seventy who were general staff officers.

Prospects For Successful Citrus Season Bright As 13 Million Cases Harvested

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

By ROMAN SLOBODIN

JERUSALEM—Prospects of a comparatively successful season for citrus fruit, mainstay of Palestine's foreign trade and internal economy, have heartened this troubled country. The prospect has been further improved by announcement of an agreement among Jewish fruit shippers which, while it will not come into effect until next year, will, it is hoped, greatly improve trade conditions and improve marketing abroad.

The principal worry of the citrus industry at present is whether or not Arab terrorists will disrupt shipments by sabotaging the railroad line to the seaport of Haifa. In the first few days of the shipping season, this danger had not materialized.

The citrus crop is estimated at 13,000,000 cases, mostly oranges, the largest in the country's history. Of this, a little more than half is produced by Jewish-owned groves, and the remainder by Arabs. Most of the crop will, as usual, be sold in England, and advance reports indicated that prices might be a little better than last year, particularly because of the disruption of shipments from Spain by the civil war there. The fruit this year is at least equal in quality to last year's excellent crop.

Jewish growers and shippers have agreed to pay a "tax" of 2 mills (one cent) on each box of fruit they export for the Redemption Fund (Kofer Hayishuv), which finances security measures for Jewish colonies imperilled by terrorism. The fund will therefore have an income of at least £12,000 ($60,000) from this source.

Arab growers are reported to have consented to pay a 2-mil fee to Arab nationalist funds, under threat by the terrorists that if they failed to do so, their groves would be raided, their trucks wrecked, and roads destroyed to disrupt their shipments. Paradoxically, this cash gain to the rebels will have an indirect favorable effect for Jewish citrus industry, since Jews and Arabs use the same highways for shipping to the sea.

The Jewish industry, however, was concerned as the season opened about the safety of the Palestine Railway, which will have to transport 3,500,000 cases of fruit to Haifa, most of it "Jewish pack." Railway authorities announced that trains would be run only by day, so that loading of cars at way-stations and unloading them at Haifa port must be carried on at night.

Nat Holman Named To Lead Activities

Special

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Nat Holman, basketball coach of the College of the City of New York for 20 years, has accepted appointment as national athletic director of Aleph Zadik Aleph, sports, it was announced by Sam Beber, President of the Supreme Advisory Council of A.Z.A.

As the first national athletic director of Aleph Zadik Aleph, Mr. Holman will serve in a volunteer capacity as consultant and expert on all questions dealing with the organization's nationwide sports activities. These include 225 basketball teams in 210 cities in 44 states, which are preparing for the annual 33 regional and seven district championship tournaments; 50 sectional summer tournaments in track and field, soft ball and tennis; and the A.Z.A. National Olympics, to be held at the end of June at Port Jervis, N. Y., with over 400 boys from all parts of the country participating.

Known from coast to coast as the nation's outstanding basketball teacher whose City College quintets have won 218 out of 278 games since 1918, Mr. Holman starred for the Original Celtics from 1921 to 1928, playing in three world championship games.

Italian Churches Hit Jewish Bias

NEWARK. — A resolution condemning atrocities against Jewish minorities abroad was adopted by more than 600 members of the congregations of nine Italian Evangelical churches of Newark and vicinity, gathered at a united meeting.

Dr. William Hiram Foulkes, pastor of Old First Church here and nationally prominent Presbyterian leader, termed the meeting gratifying at a time when "fires of hatred and suspicion were burning in certain parts of the world, where such an assembly would not have been permitted."

The Rev. Peter Di Nardo, pastor of the Church of Our Saviour, declared that persons who came here from Italy have found in this country a home and opportunity and the "greatest of treasures." Pastors of the other Italian churches uniting in the meeting also spoke.

Full Airing Of Refugee Status Seen For Talks

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON.—The Berlin talks between Reichsbank President Hjalmar Schacht and Director George Rublee of the Intergovernmental Refugee Bureau will not necessarily be limited to the specific proposals contained in the Schacht plan but the way is open to a full discussion of all possibilities, the J. T. A. learned authoritatively. Rublee is visiting Berlin upon the invitation of Dr. Schacht, probably as soon as possible after the holidays.

Official circles described the Schacht proposals as "a very complicated plan" with many ramifications. The plan includes an international loan to finance emigration, secured by the pooling of Jewish property in the Reich. It would be raised abroad and would be serviced and amortized by currency obtained by the Reich through increased exports. The nations guaranteeing the raising of the loan would thus actually be taxing themselves by increased imports from Germany to repay the loan.

Financial circles expressed the opinion that Mr. Rublee's visit to Berlin was auspicious at this time. In view of the Nazis' desire to provide the most harmonious background for the forthcoming Anglo-German trade talks it is believed that the Reich is prepared to make considerable concessions to avert a breakdown of the refugee talks, at least until the fate of the Anglo-German negotiations is decided.

Meanwhile, in what was believed a plea to the dominions to permit entry of German Jewish refugees on the immigration lists, Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald recommended in Commons allowing limited numbers of foreigners to settle in the dominions, arguing that at present England itself could not supply all the emigrants needed.

Ghetto Houses Get U. S. Films

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

BERLIN.—The first "ghetto" cinema was to be opened at Kulturbund Hall this week, with the income to be devoted to supporting emigration of poor Jews. Operated by the Nazi-sponsored Jewish Culture League, the movie house will be one of several in Berlin and other centers through which the Nazis expect the League can be made self-supporting.

Five American films are scheduled among the first dozen, including Captains Courageous, Chicago and a Shirley Temple film now showing in Germany. There will be two performances nightly. Provided that Hollywood is generous and ships films gratis, since the League is banned from paying for imports, the possibility is seen that Jewish audiences may see films that have long been barred on racial grounds. Such pictures include those starring Charlie Chaplin, Paul Muni, Elisabeth Bergner, and those directed by Ernst Lubitsch and other "non-Aryan" directors. However, films involving certain political themes are automatically barred.

GROWTH OF DISCRIMINATION IN JOBS SHOWN

Report By Rabbi J. X. Cohen Reveals Working Chances

EDITOR'S NOTE: So startling and scientific is the report on Jewish non-employment of Rabbi J. X. Cohen, head of the Commission on Economic Problems of the American Jewish Congress, that this paper has decided to print it in full, from week to week. The report, the third rendered by Rabbi Cohen, is the most complete and authentic study on discrimination in jobs yet made.

By RABBI J. X. COHEN

The vicious boycotting of Jewish workers in Poland pains us deeply. The application of a percentage norm against Jewish employes in Hungary grieves us greatly. It is natural that it should be so, but in sending our fears, our sympathies, and our support across the sea we dare not ignore the rising tide of anti-Semitism in our own land. It is evidenced in many reprehensible forms, the most insidious of which is the economic embargo imposed by some American employers against Jewish workers.

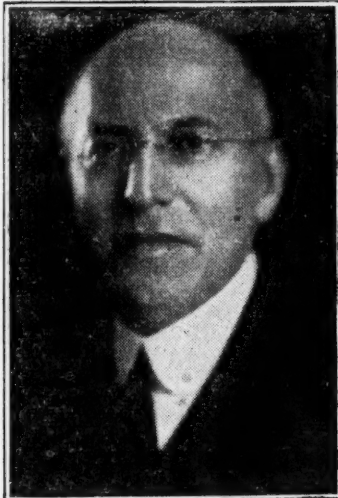

We cannot afford to neglect the continued application of such exclusionist policies by these employers. We cannot afford it for ourselves, and more particularly for our children. Nor can European Jewry's status fail to be adversely affected if we were to allow our position in the American economic scene to be increasingly menaced and undermined. Furthermore, we must not foolishly assume that somebody other than ourselves is going to become wrought up over the matter, and, in our behalf, challenge discriminatory acts.

We cannot rely upon others. Recent world-shaking events have vividly emphasized that such reliance is a faulty hope. Our destiny can best, and only, be worked out through our own labor on our own behalf. Co-operation from others we welcome, and will receive; but the initiative, the energy and the labor we must supply.

At its 1937 Washington session the American Jewish Congress authorized the continuance of the work of its Commission on Economic Problems, which deals particularly with problems of economic discrimination. The Congress made possible the extension of our work. This report covers some phases of our activity during the past year, and refers briefly to some of our findings and accomplishments.

While our active files contain considerable material, good judg-

Taken By Death

RABBI SIMON

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

WASHINGTON.—Rabbi Abram Simon, Jewish leader, educator and orator, died of a heart attack at the age of 66. Death came less than three hours after he preached at the Washington Hebrew Congregation. Rabbi Simon served in the pulpit at Sacramento, Calif., and Omaha, Neb., before coming to Washington in 1904.

ment dictates that much of it should not be made public at this time. To do so might enhance interest in this report, but premature release would hamper those end results for which we are laboring. Not that we are afraid of publicity; on the contrary, an informed public opinion is the greatest single factor in the success of our remedial program. But negotiation intelligently conducted cannot be publicly reported upon until either the negotiations are completed, or deplorably, an impasse has been reached.

Discrimination Increasing

Regrettably clear are the evidences of increased discrimination which have come to our attention during the past year. Investigations we made show not only that there is greater bias, but that it has reached a height never before attained. In the technological field, for example, upon inquiry of a large list of American university and college scientific schools, it was elicited that they have found more and more doors of many important industrial firms being closed to their technical graduates who are Jewish.

A mid-western university, through a trustee, recently notified Jewish leaders of the community in which the university is located, that it was being forced to action which it did not wish misinterpreted as anti-Jewish. The university was planning, most regretfully, to limit the enrollment of Jewish students in its technical schools because the trustees had found their Jewish graduates very difficult to place. As trustees of university funds and facilities, they dared not continue wasteful misapplication upon unplaceable Jewish students.

Study of Classified Ads

Another barometer reading was furnished by our extensive study of the help-wanted advertisements inserted by employment agencies and others in certain New York newspapers. Our primary objective was to ascertain whether discriminatory specifications varied with the business cycle, and the effect which Nazi propaganda might have had upon the frequency of such specifications.

Inspection revealed a shocking situation and told a very bitter story. The daily broadside of columns of advertisements marked "Christian," "Christian firm," "Anglo-Saxon," and similar limitations, goes far beyond the reflection of employment agency policies. These "ads" deliver a steady daily flow of serious anti-Jewish propaganda penetrating millions of American homes.

We conferred in New York with the city officials having jurisdiction over licensed employment agencies regarding agency advertisements, and learned that so long as an agency has a bona fide order for a position in which the employer makes the religious stipulation, the commissioner allows the agency to so advertise. The agency justifies such advertisement upon the grounds that it saves time and care for unwanted applicants; it prevents offices from being flooded with unwanted applicants; it avoids the embarrassment of telling the Jewish applicants they will not be considered. These specious reasons are, of course, outweighed by considerations of great social consequence.

Six representative years in the period from the World War were chosen for the study of discriminatory specifications. These were:

- 1917-1918 Height of the war time boom.
- 1921 Post-war depression.
- 1928 Height of the "Coolidge prosperity" era.
- 1932 Depths of the depression.
- 1934 After the accession of Hitler to power.
- 1937-1938 Present period.

In the boom year 1918, discriminatory specifications were generally very rare, but were followed by higher frequencies in the depression year 1921. In the 1928 boom period, discriminatory specifications were again rare; in the agency ads they had virtually disappeared. In the depression year 1932, discriminatory specifications were much more frequent than in the 1921 depression.

In the agency ads of 1932, specifications of "Christian firm" were twice as frequent as in 1921, and "Protestant firm" three times as frequent. Both these specifications had been absent in 1928.

In 1934, agency ads took on a new complexion. Discriminatory specifications became exceedingly frequent, both in contrast to previous years, and to the help wanted ads of the same year. This tendency intensified in 1937-38. At the present time the classified ads are tremendously more discriminatory in tenor than in any previous year.

In the agency ads of 1934, the specification of "Christian firm" occurred at the amazingly high rate of once in every column inch of advertising matter—five times as frequent as in 1932. The specification "Anglo-Saxon," a new approach to an Aryan specification, occurred for the first time. In 1937-38, specifications of "Christian," a much more direct barrier than the relatively non-committal "Christian firm," occurred with very great frequency. The specification "Christian" largely replaced the less exclusionist "Christian firm" because of pressure exercised by the agencies upon the newspaper publishers.

Until 1934, there were no specifications of "Christian" in one of the great New York papers. In 1934 they began, sporadically. The tremendous frequencies in 1937-38 are thus completely new tendencies. In 1937-38 moreover, such specifications as "Anglo-Saxon," hitherto very rare, occurred in this paper very frequently.

Our study of another important New York paper, made for comparative purposes, showed that it carried much more frequent discriminatory specifications. Specifications of "Christian" occurred in agency ads once in every ½ column-inch of advertising, as compared with once in 6½ column-inches in the other paper; "Anglo-Saxon," once in every 4½ column-inches as compared with once per 29 column-inches. The laudable effort made by one paper to reduce discriminatory advertising in its columns has been somewhat effective, but its efforts need community bolstering.

HILLMAN'S:

Listen, dainty ones, do you want to be a dream walking? Well, then wiggle into one of those snug little afternoon dresses HILLMAN'S have to offer you. You'll knock the favorite boy friend for a loop, so help me, and you'll be stylish for quite some time to come as these dreams were designed with an eye toward tomorrow! And say, to you lucky creatures who are wending your way toward lovely Florida or equally lively California, HILLMAN'S has a complete selection of sport suits and sunshiny frocks to fill you with delight and also to amply fill your wardrobe. Just think, a HILLMAN'S frock or sport suit with an exclusive label, on a luscious body, on the warm, sea shore, with an admiring adonis by your side. Ah, girls, that is the acme of the acme, aye 'tis heavenly.

Annette Marcus, dark and voluptuous, sure would create another Florida Hurricane if she appeared on Miami Beach in one of those Satiny, close-hugging bathing suits, during the winter season, don't ya think?

INDIANA FUR CO:

It's gigantic, stupendous, colossal, in other words it's tremendous. What, you may say, are we getting at? Well, we'll explain: It's the INDIANA FUR COMPANY'S annual January clearance sale of fur coats, muffs, boleros and fur trimmed hats. Perhaps you have noticed how nonchalantly we change our scene of action from Florida and sunshine to winter and snow, but we unfortunately who must face the cold, cold blasts and can't bask in golden warmth, just have to have something to help us keep warm, and where is there a better way than with the aid of a fur coat. To tell you that the INDIANA FUR CO. is offering the most wonderful values in their long years of business would be a gross understatement. So at a loss of words we ask you to help us out and go down and see for yourselves. And these coats are made to wear (fur) a long long time.

Cute and perky, Virginia Schwartz is strutting her stuff these days in a green cloth coat trimmed in white skunk, and a comfy white skunk muff, with a zippered purse in the lining. We'll bet her fellow, you know, the one that writes People and Places, thinks she's a doll in motion.

Maurice Brevannes of New York who with his wife is visiting Mrs. Brevannes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Popp, for the holidays, is the French artist who has just finished a large mural for the Food building of the World's Fair in association with Witold Gordon. The mural, which is on the outside wall of the Food building, is 200 feet long and 30 feet high and was several months in creating. It depicts the relations of food and man in a decorative, abstract way.

Mrs. Brevannes, who spent most of her childhood in Indianapolis, was born in France and has returned there for several visits. She has been actively interested in the arts, having until recently owned a fine-art gallery, and is now an artist's representative.

PEOPLE AND PLACES

By SEYMOUR PINKUS

You all know Estelle Levin,
I'd like to kiss her,
But she won't give in.

This and many other goofy but clever rhymes were crooned by Norm Weisman (Ukelele Ike), at the Beth El Youth Group dance last Sunday, which by the way was a humdinger, a wow, a whiz and I might even go as far as to say, a lolly. In the "Who Am I" contest Cecilia Klein, Sylvia Epstein and Arv Rothchild were declared the winners! Not one of the contestants could guess the identity of Weisman until he let loose with this clue:—"This fellow hasn't had a date as yet, but would like to." Everyone finally guessed then that it was Norm, the muscle man. We saw Hanna Leah Miller, Harold Schwartz, Bess Goldstein and Charley Sachs, who by the way are receiving congrats—they announced their engagement last Sunday, Milt Singer and his fiancée, Phyllis Greenberg, Bob Pallman with an out-of-town lass, Harry Hochman, Itzy Kaplan, Wallie Goldstein, Betty Berry, Mildred Cohen, Henrietta Schwartz, and millions of others.

Whether you know it or not, we will all be subpoenaed to appear in court on January 22. What's the big idea sez you? Well, sez we, that's when the Youth Group will hold its next free get-together at which there will be a mock wedding, criminal trial, divorce suit, and other cases on the docket, so try to be good, chilluns, try to be good, or de law will get ya!

Ran into Shirley (swimming star) Einbeinder last week, and the girl's really worked up to a lather. You see, she attended the Sammy dance at Purdue a short time ago, met a fellow who she claims "is so good-looking I can't believe it!" and so, Shirl's got de love bug. Nope, she wouldn't tell his name, but I'll bet part of it is either Clark or Power.

All you A.Z.A.'s should be tucked out after that swell elegant K. I. O. convention in Ft. Wayne last week-end. There was basketball, ping-pong, debating, dancing and cuddling as the feature attractions of the get-together. South Bend won the basketball title when they defeated the Toledo, Ohio boys. And by the way, the old time Hebrew Center team of Ft. Wayne got together once more and played the Ft. Wayne A.Z.A. We, that is, Abe Kaplan, Jack Komisarow, Sid Schechter, Sam Levin, Izzy Levin and myself, just couldn't keep up with the young'ns and they scalped us. Time's marchin' on—we learned. Posies to you, Summit city, you did a fine job—and we all had a wonderful time.

Art Mogilner of St. Paul, Minn., is visiting Irv Rubin and is negotiating for the purchase of a local motion picture theatre. We'd like to add your name to the community roster Mr. Mogilner.

Senator Jake Weiss has installed a ping-pong table in his home and I'll bet he did it after reading in this column about the way in which Clare Joseph was cleaning house on all would-be opponents. A Weiss-Joseph battle would be the most sensational sporting event since the days when the Indianapolis Indians were redskins and not a baseball team.

Sam Hochman and his charming wife celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on December twenty-third. May we still be writing about you and your fine eatery, the Subway, twenty-three years hence.

Speaking of eating places and foods, a friend of ours has opened the Pay-N-Take Market at 5168 N. College and he'd like to see lots of the Post readers patronizing him.

Beryl Madiel was out of a job. Beryl got a job at a local department store during the Xmas rush. A man asked Beryl if she would show him a mackinaw. Beryl directed him to the toy department. Beryl Madiel is out of a job! (We're all for you anyhow, kid.)

Our hat, battered and torn, but still our hat, is off to Erich Kleiber, world famous musical conductor who cancelled all engagements to appear at La Scala theatre, Milan, because of Italy's anti-Jewish campaign. We quote him: "Music is made for every one, like the sun and air. When this fountain of consolation, so necessary in these hard times, is denied to any human being—and that merely because he belongs to a different religion and race—I can not collaborate either as a Christian or an artist." Thank you, Sir.

Well, the old year is just about gone and we look forward to a new one eagerly and happily. First, I sincerely wish you a very Happy New Year, and I mean that. May 1939 bring about a better feeling towards our people in this troubled world.

Negroes Raise Sum For Exiles

SPECIAL
NEW YORK.—Negro sympathy for oppressed minorities in Central and Eastern Europe was given concrete expression through the contribution of $130 by members of the Abyssinian Baptist Church, of this city, for the aid of Christian and Jewish refugees. The sum represented the total collected at a meeting in the church addressed by Rabbi Harry Halpern of the East Midwood Jewish Center of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The money will be equally divided between the J.D.C. and the American Committee for Christian German Refugees. In forwarding the check to the two refugee aid agencies, Rev. A. Clayton Powell, Jr., Pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church stated that this was the largest collection that the church had contributed during the past eight years.

"I personally feel," he stated, "that it is significant when the Negro people as poverty stricken and oppressed as they are, are yet willing to gladly make this contribution."

Between You and Me -

by PAUL A. PETERS

MYSTERY: The ladies of Hadassah, bless 'em, are confronted with a nasty little mystery. . . . One in which the Federal authorities, if they haven't already been called in, may well be asked to take a hand. . . . As with a good many mysteries these days, there appears to be a Nazi or two in the woodpile. . . . Hadassah operates a department of supplies, whose duty it is to collect packages of used clothes and other odds and ends from all parts of the country. . . . The contents of these bundles are forwarded to Palestine for the use of needy settlers. . . . Sometimes the parcels are sent by parcel post, frequently via express. . . . Recently, the supplies department has been receiving expressed packages that have been defaced somewhere along the route—the defacement consisting of a pencilled swastika. . . . The swastikaed bundles have come from points west and south. . . .

CAMERAMAN: Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel leader, we are informed reliably, has refused Nazi demands to fire the chief cameraman in his entourage. . . . The pixhound, believe it or not, is a tribesman. . . . Of whom Franco is very fond. . . .

HEADLINE: Prince Hubertus Loewenstein likes to relate this anecdote: Before Hitler's day, and right after the war, the famous German democratic newspaper Vossische Zeitung used to offer a prize to the staff man who could think up the most sensational headline. . . . The winning headline was: ARCHDUKE FERDINAND STILL ALIVE; WORLD WAR IN VAIN. . . . A grand idea, but how about bringing it up to date, with one like this: HITLER FLEES REICH; NAZISM CRUSHED. . . .

QUESTION: Was it, Carl Alpert wants to know, sheer accident or intent that made the New York Herald Tribune list news of Father Coughlin in their front page index under the heading: Nazi Situation. . . .

CHANUKAH: "Silent as a Chanukah Candle," read the ad of a gas appliance company, published in several Anglo-Jewish papers. . . . But it was quite obvious that the word Chanukah had been substituted for something else. . . . And as for the illustration, since when does a Chanukah candle have a sprig of holly around it? . . .

REFUGEE NOTE: A new refugee settlement society is in process of formation in this country. . . . If it ever blossoms, you'll know why those who know about it already think it's the dizziest yet. Its prime mover, incidentally, is author of a recent book of Jewish interest. . . . Of course, the name of his book will be kept religiously out of all announcements about the society. . . . We hope against hope. . . .

MISH-MASH: Louis Pofkin is leaving ORT at the end of the month. . . . He did a grand job as campaign and publicity director, post which he held since last February. . . . The ORT, incidentally, is conducting a special campaign for $100,000. . . . The money will be used to establish a Vladeck Memorial School in some European city. . . . A German-Jewish entrepreneur, or impresario, who applied at the Australian consulate in Berlin for an immigration visa was surprised at the alacrity with which he was given one. . . . Asked his profession, he looked up the translation for entrepreneur and the nearest he could come to it was that it conveyed the idea of a person prepared to undertake anything. . . . So he said he was an undertaker. . . . And was overjoyed and astounded to get the visa, with the instructions that he was to go at once since Australia had plenty of work for him. . . . Speaking of refugees, wonder if other readers noticed something faintly contradictory in that recent story which told of a New Jersey refugee colony called Free Acres. . . . The story of Free Acres was datelined SCOTCH PLAINS. . . . Henry Monsky, B'nai B'rith president and Omaha attorney, spends at least half of his time in Washington and New York on B'nai B'rith business. . . . The secretary of the Marriage Brokers' Association reports that there's a boom market for refugee girls from Germany. . . . "American girls are always looking for something better," he declares, "but for the refugee girls, anything is better." . . . The secretary of the British Israel World Federation, which has a million members and promotes the idea that the Anglo-Saxons are the ten lost tribes of Israel, is a 38-year-old former war ace named Ronald Heaver. . . . Heaver, who was crippled in a 6,000-ft. air crash while flying with the anti-Richtofen circus, says the federation (non-Jewish) adds 1,000 members yearly, spends $100,000 annually in propagating its message. . . .

The Editor's Chair:

Last month I received a review of "The Rape of Palestine" by William B. Ziff on the letter-head of an organization called, "National Conference of American Jewry." The review was highly commendatory. Since this paper does not regularly publish reviews, I could find no place for the article and was ready to throw it away. But my inveterate suspicious attitude asserted itself and I began to wonder who the National Conference was and what was their purpose in sending out a review.

So I wrote a letter to one of the national Jewish organizations in New York, inclosed the letterhead on which the review was mimeographed and suggested that they might investigate. And here is their reply:

"We have taken steps to obtain the information requested in your letter of November 23rd concerning the newly organized National Conference of American Jewry, but I regret to inform you that the results thus far have been very meagre. So far as we know at present, this organization seems to be purely a promotional scheme for advancing the sale of their book "The Rape of Palestine" by William B. Ziff. This book, as you know, is a strongly-worded Revisionist exposition of the Palestine situation.

"A visit to the headquarters of this organization revealed one or two unfurnished offices with no one but a stenographer and a young clerk or office boy in attendance, who informed our inquirer that the officers were "out of town." We shall, of course, attempt to secure additional information. It is regrettable that this organization chose to adopt a title which is likely to convey erroneous impressions about its nature and work."

J. W. V. In Call For Emergency Session

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. — Because of the aggravated conditions confronting Jewry in Europe and the growing trend of un-American and anti-Semitic movements in the United States, Isador S. Worth, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans in the United States, has issued a call to the 200 posts to an emergency conference here Jan. 7 and 8. This is the first time in the 42 years' existence of the organization that such a mid-year convention has been called.

The conference will discuss a proposal to affiliate with the J. W. V. as a subordinate group Americans of Jewish faith between the ages of 21 and 35 who are interested in the program of the veterans, but who were too young at the time of the World War to enter the service.

Economic Commission Watches Out For Job Discrimination

WHAT the Anti-Defamation League is to the B'nai B'rith, the Commission on Economic Problems is to the American Jewish Congress.

In a revealing report issued in pamphlet form this week, Rabbi J. X. Coxen, chairman of the commission, lays open a situation which rapidly is assuming serious proportions for the general welfare of the Jews of the United States. Without fanfare, and basing his deductions on actual facts revealed by surveys, Rabbi Cohen has shown first that there is growing tendency to discriminate against Jewish workers, and second that in the short time of its existence, the commission has been able to open for employment literally hundreds of jobs which heretofore had been denied to Jews because of their religion.

Almost ridiculous are the two replies received by Rabbi Cohen from the New York Telephone Company and a large restaurant chain. In the first instance the phone company official declared that Jewish girls could not operate central office equipment because their arms are too short; and in the case of the restaurant, the owner pointed out seriously that he employed no Jewish waitresses because Jewish girls did not like to be seen in restaurants serving non-kosher food.

Discussing plans for enlargement of the commission, the pamphlet declares that the Congress has embarked "upon a national program which would call for the establishment of a commission to deal with this problem in the principal centers of Jewish population throughout the United States. The method it employs is that of personal negotiations which in a number of instances have proved to be extremely effective, and wherever necessary through the application of present statutes dealing with discrimination because of race or religion."

This paper has fought the American Jewish Congress on most issues. Yet we have watched the work of the economic commission with increasing admiration. It has operated fully as effectively in its own sphere as the Anti-Defamation League, and has earned the added commendation of not concealing every last bit of its work behind a cloak of secrecy as disturbing to Jews as it is foreboding to non-Jews. In all its dealings the economic commission has never employed the fanfare and the tactics which its connection with The Congress would indicate. Rabbi Cohen, the Congress and of course the economic commission, deserve the thanks the gratitude and co-operation of American Jewry.

Current Comment

Editor And Publisher Magazine For Newspaper Men, Discusses Anti-Semitism In The U. S. —Anti-Semitism, always smoldering but rarely important in American history, has been dangerously fanned here by events in Germany.

New York has had a whispering campaign, false in toto, that its large department stores discharged hundreds of employees to make room for refugees from Europe. The city's large Negro population has been agitated by reports, probably of equal falsity, that its jobs are to be forfeited to the unfortunates from Germany and Austria. The latter yarn has even appeared seriously in a letter to the editor of a New York newspaper.

Columns of newspaper space have been devoted to the controversy between Father Coughlin and Radio Station WMCA, in which the anti-Semitic storm whirled amid evidence of doubtful, at least disputed, authority. In St. Petersburg, Fla., The Independent recently used its entire editorial page to refute a letter from a local retired physician which raked up a mess of ancient forgeries against the Jewish people.

It is tragic that such a discussion can arise, even as a whisper, in America of 1938. It can do no good for the people under the dictators' lash in Europe. It can do immense, immeasurable harm here. If the crackbrained bigots among Jews and Gentiles carry their propaganda to the point of fanning unintelligent prejudices into uncontrollable flame, the consequences may have no precedent in our annals. They will not be confined to the Jewish people. The tolerance of all religion that has marked our 150 years as a nation will be eclipsed for many years.

There is no subject with more perils for the press but the interests of the country demand that it be handled frankly and courageously. If this fire is to be put out, and it must be, quickly, candor, honesty, and tolerance must be given full play in the press. To date, we must conclude, newspapers' conduct has been admirable.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency Reports On The New Anti-Jewish Laws Hungary Plans To Enforce.—Jews will be barred from positions as State, municipal or other public employees, public notaries, trustees, patent agents and official translators.

Jewish membership in the medical, legal, engineering, press, theater and cinema chambers will be restricted to six per cent. War veterans will be admitted above this percentage, provided that their number does not exceed three per cent of the membership. There will be no new admissions of Jews to the professions until the six per cent ratio is reached.

Jews will be barred from being editors, publishers or holding other responsible positions in the press, except in Jewish and other non-Hungarian publications. They will also be barred from directorships and secretariats and other leading positions in the theatre and cinema.

Drastic restrictions are provided on Jewish participation in State monopolies and in State and municipal contracts. These curbs will be effected by stages. The Jewish ratio will be reduced to 20 per cent in 1939-40, to 10 per cent in 1941-42 and to six per cent in 1943. State contracts will be given to Jews only if Christian firms do not bid or if the Jewish bids are considerably lower.

The proportion of Jewish manual and intellectual workers in private enterprises must not exceed 12 per cent of the total, with an additional three per cent of Jewish war veterans permitted. Enterprises with no more than ten workers will be able to employ a maximum of two Jews and those with no more than five will be allowed to hire only one Jew. The reduction of the number of Jewish workers will be enforced by stages, to be completed not later than January, 1943.

Z. Tygel Proposes New Defense Council For American Jewry.—Our present sporadic, divided and haphazard efforts in this field must be replaced by a united, continuous, comprehensive and scientific method of self-defense. I propose that we establish a bureau along these lines to be conducted by research experts, with the active co-operation of the best forces among the cultured Jews and non-Jews of America. The purpose of the bureau will be to create a permanent and extensive archive of historical and factual material which is to be available always at a moment's notice to answer and refute any and all misstatements, scurrilous charges and libels against our people that may be uttered in print, in speech, or on the radio. This would be the bulwark of defense for the Jewish people throughout the world. Such an apparatus, in order to carry out its function adequately, should, in my opinion, have at its disposal an annual budget of one million dollars.

We Jews in America are not united. I am not speaking of difference of opinion, which, per se, is a healthy phenomenon and, when crystallized, the natural precedent to constructive action. Every normal people, however, when faced with a common external danger, buries all differences of opinion and unites in a common front of self-defense. But we Jews seem to differ from others in this respect. We do not comprehend the significance of the peril of Hitlerism and Fascism that lurks at our very door today, else we would long ago have put aside all our inner differences and created a great Council of American Jewry for a united and vigorous resistance to our mortal enemy. One need not minimize the importance and value of the recently organized Council of the Big Four: American Jewish Congress, the American Jewish Committee, B'nai B'rith and the Jewish Labor Committee. But this is still not the great Council that can serve us as a Board of Strategy and General Staff in a time of emergency, a time of war against our people such as, in truth, exists today. The Council I am proposing should consist, in addition to the recognized leaders of the already existing Jewish organizations, of at least fifty of the most distinguished Jews who occupy an eminent position in the industrial life and culture of America, due to the importance of their achievements, as well as their integrity, high idealism and devotion to the cause of American democracy and humanity in general.

Freedom of the Press Asks Readers For Job

To the Editor:

I am appealing through your newspaper in the hope that some business man will give me employment.

I am a Jewish young man 36 years of age and have had a high school education. I have been employed as a salesman in a variety store for a number of years and am willing to do anything. I need work badly and if given the opportunity I will do my utmost to make good.

My parents are dead and I am all alone. I will appreciate it very much if some one will give me employment. In closing I wish to thank you and hope my appeal will be answered.

is scheduled to handle shipment of at least 2,000,000 cases of fruit this season, double the quantity shipped through Tel Aviv during the 1937-38 season. With comparatively minor addition to its equipment, Tel Aviv would increase its capacity to 3,500,000 a season, and some of the additional equipment may be obtained during the winter, so that the port will exceed its schedule.

Seasonal work in the citrus industry has already reduced Jewish unemployment by 15,000, according to estimates by the Hebrew press, with the peak of citrus employment not yet reached. It is estimated that another 3,000 Jews will find work in the groves. These will be drawn from among unemployed in the cities, particularly Tel Aviv. The result is the elimination of a considerable part of the Jewish unemployment problem for the winter.

April 16 Charlie Chaplin will reach the half-century mark. In celebration theatre men will re-issue some of his old comedies. Charlie, though gray-haired for some time, remains a box-office favorite. Because of the international language of pantomime, his pictures have always been big money-makers in foreign markets.

Maxie Rosenbloom likes acting . . . but not much dialogue. . . complains he can't get "punch" into long sentences. His best lines consist of two words laid end to end!

In these times of rampant hatred it is fortunate that "Old Curiosity Shop" is such a poor picture. The villain, a Jew is so caricatured in the Hitler manner as to be comic rather than frightening. Badly and cheaply produced, it will enjoy small patronage. . . we hope. On the other hand, "A Christmas Carol" for holiday trade stresses love of one's fellow men, emerges as a beautiful piece of sincere acting and fine montage.
